THE SEATTLE CHAMBER SINGERS

We wish to welcome you to the fifth concert of the Chamber Singers second full season and hope that you will wish to join us for the remainder of our concerts this year. There are three unique concerts remaining in our current season:

Handel's Oratorio "L'Allegro ed il Penseroso" Apr. 5
An Elizabethan Entertainment May 9, 10, 11
Harpischord Recital June 7

The oratorio has never been performed in Seattle. The text concerns the "battle" between Mirth and Melancholy. The Elizabethan Entertainment is an original adaptation of the Masque of Queens by Ben Jonson. The final concert is co-sponsored by Newman Harpischords of Seattle and will feature guest artist Eva Heinitz, viola da gamba. The box office will have tickets to all of these concerts following tonight's performance.

We wish to thank Jerry and Carol Sams for allowing us to use their 1899 Steinway Grand Piano, University Unitarian Church for the use of music stands and rehearsal facilities, and Soundings Northwest for publicity.

The Chamber Singers are continually having open auditions for soloists, singers, and instrumentalists. If you wish to audition, please call Carol Sams at 525-4827 for more info or an appointment.

Special auditions for this year's Elizabethan Entertainment will be held the second and third weeks of March. Watch for exact announcements in the newspapers. We will need actors, dancers, musicians, singers, and instrumentalists. Please call Bob Nicholson, stage director, for more information at 365-4827.

The Seattle Chamber Singers is a non-profit corporation in the State of Washington. Contributions are tax-deductible. We are always in need of additional funding, as the box office receipts cannot possibly support our arts organization. Any contribution will be most gratefully received. Checks made out to the Chamber Singers may be sent to 1314 N.E. 75th Seattle 98115.

About the composers:

Charles Theodore Pachelbel was the son of the famous Johann Pachelbel. Born in Germany, he immigrated to the Colonies in 1732 or 1733. The Gloria performed this evening is part of a Magnificat presented at the first concert given in New York City (1736).

George W. Chadwick (1854 - 1931) studied in Berlin and was one of the teachers of Horatio Parker, who in turn taught Charles Ives. He composed in many forms, including opera.

William Billings is one of the best known of the early native American composers, and the first to try composition as a profession. His life was full of poverty and hardship, a tradition common to composers, but until Billings not extended to America. Once one of his critics accused him of writing too sweetly. He answered by composing "Jargon", a completely dissonant work which antedates Schoenberg by a century and a half. The words to Modern Music are his own.

Edward MacDowell (1861 - 1908) was not always considered musically polite; in the late '80's his compositions were the dismay of many correct Bostonians. He is frequently compared to Grieg, as both are best in their smaller works.

Charles Ives (1874 - 1954) is justly considered as one of America's greatest and most individual composers. His teacher of composition at Yale was frequently bothered by his innovations. "Ives," he said, "must you hog all the keys?" In order not to compromise his art, he turned to the business of life insurance and composed in his spare time.

George Gershwin (1898 - 1937) was a song-plugger in Remick's music store when he declared his intention to be a "great popular-song writer". He studied counterpoint with Henry Cowell, and after he became famous, wrote to both Stravinsky and Ravel to ask them to take him as a pupil. He frequently rewrote and revised up until the last minute before a performance. "Delilah" is from the musical Girl-Crazy.

Aaron Copland (b. 1900) is considered to be almost synonymous with American music. He wrote that he "had to see if I couldn't say what I had to say in the simplest possible terms."

Samuel Barber (1910 - ) is probably best known for his Adagio for Strings, composed originally for string quartet as his Master's Thesis project. The three Reincarnations are based on poems by James Stephens.

William Bergsma (1921 - ) a Seattle composer and professor at the University of Washington, wrote the three Riddles for the Collegiate Chorus of Illinois Wesleyan University. The texts are traditional.
