About OSSCS

Orchestra Seattle and the Seattle Chamber Singers form a partnership unique among Pacific Northwest musical organizations, combining a 60-member orchestra with a 45-voice chorus to perform oratorio masterworks alongside symphonic repertoire and world premieres.

George Shangrow (1951–2010) founded the Seattle Chamber Singers in 1969, when still a teenager. The group performed a diverse array of music, from works of the Medieval, Renaissance and Baroque periods to contemporary pieces, partnering with an ad hoc group of instrumentalists to present Bach cantatas and Handel oratorios—many of which received their first Seattle performances under George’s direction. In 1979, George formed an orchestra originally called the Broadway Chamber Symphony (after the Broadway Performance Hall on Seattle’s Capitol Hill, where it gave its first concerts) and later, beginning with the 1991–1992 season, Orchestra Seattle. With George on the podium (or conducting from the harpsichord), OSSCS became renowned for performances of the Bach Passions and numerous Handel oratorios—particularly Messiah. During the “Bach Year” of 1985, the ensembles presented 35 concerts devoted to dozens upon dozens of Bach’s works to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the composer’s birth.

George Shangrow lost his life in a car crash in 2010, an event that shocked not only OSSCS musicians and our audiences, but the entire Pacific Northwest musical community. Over the ensuing three seasons, the volunteer performers of OSSCS partnered with a number of distinguished guest conductors to carry on the astounding musical legacy George created. Beginning with the 2013–2014 season, OSSCS welcomed Clinton Smith as our new music director.

About the Narrator

Narrator Eugene Kidder and his wife, Barbara, are long-time supporters of Orchestra Seattle and the Seattle Chamber Singers. Eugene’s history as a trumpet player began in the charter days of the Seattle Youth Symphony, and continues to this day with his membership in the Seattle Symphonic Band. He and Barbara conduct a practice in pastoral counseling and psychotherapy, specializing in group therapy. Eugene is an ordained minister in the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

About the Guest Conductor

Guest conductor Aadi Lahiri is a ninth grader currently attending Seattle’s Garfield High School. When he isn’t playing trumpet in Garfield’s orchestra or jazz band, he is an active volunteer for Seattle Music Partners, teaching weekly private trumpet lessons to students at Leschi, Madrona and Bailey Gatzert Elementary Schools. During past years, Aadi has been a member of Hamilton International Middle School’s concert band and jazz programs. In addition to music, Aadi enjoys Latin, chess and glassblowing.

Program Notes

American composer Leroy Anderson (1908–1975) was born and raised in Cambridge, Massachusetts, where he went on to major in music at Harvard University. Playing trombone in the band and double bass in the orchestra, he studied composition with Walter Piston and Georges Enescu. While pursuing a Ph.D. in Germanic and Scandinavian languages, Anderson continued working as a director and arranger for the Harvard Band, his talents eventually attracting the attention of Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops. In 1939, Fiedler and the Pops recorded Jazz Pizzicato, Anderson’s first published composition. After military service as an interpreter during World War II, Anderson continued his association with the Pops, which premiered many of his most popular works, including The Syncopated Clock, Fiddle-Faddle and Trumpeter’s Lullaby.

Anderson created A Christmas Festival for a Pops LP recorded during June 1950. “Arthur Fiedler asked me to do a concert overture,” Anderson later recalled. “I selected the [carols] that were the most popular and best known, and then I took them and tried to give instrumental treatment to them; in other words, it’s not a medley, that isn’t what we wanted to do…. I rather took the themes and built, you might say, a concert overture around the Christmas songs.” Anderson devised his nine-minute overture in such a way that it could be recorded in two pieces for release on the two sides of a 78 rpm single. When preparing the piece for publication, he “realized most conductors would not want a selection of this length, so I made a shorter version myself, rather than have them try to make makeshift cuts.”

Born in London in 1945 and educated at Cambridge, John Rutter reigns as the most popular choral composer and conductor of his generation. In 1981 he founded the Cambridge Singers, and the following year they joined the City of London Sinfonia, a children’s chorus and children’s author Nanette Newman to record a television Christmas special at Salisbury Cathedral, for which Rutter composed Brother Heinrich’s Christmas, narrated by Newman. Featuring solo roles for oboe and bassoon, Rutter’s original story imagines that medieval monk Heinrich Suso had some assistance from his donkey, Sigismund, along with divine inspiration when he composed the carol In dulci jubilo.

As a composer of light orchestral miniatures, Leroy Anderson stood unrivaled during the middle part of the previous century. In 1950, Decca signed him to a recording contract, and two years later his Blue Tango became the first instrumental to hit No. 1 on the Billboard singles chart. Although many of his once-ubiquitous melodies have faded from public consciousness (The Typewriter and The Syncopated Clock might require some explanation to youngsters of the digital generation), one work has only become more popular over time: Sleigh Ride. Anderson began composing it during a July 1946 heat wave at his Woodbury, Connecticut, home; Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops first recorded it in 1949. The following year, Mitchell Parish penned lyrics for a vocal version first recorded by the Andrews Sisters.

Largely a self-taught composer, Alan Silvestri struggled through the 1970s as a guitarist and arranger while providing music for a handful of low-budget films. In 1978, on the verge of quitting music for “a real job,” he caught a break scoring the second-season premiere of the TV show ChiPs, leading to a steady gig for the program’s remaining five seasons. He then scored the 1984 feature Romancing the Stone, directed by Robert Zemeckis—and has written music for all of Zemeckis’ films since, including Back to the Future and its sequels, Who Framed Roger Rabbit, Forrest Gump, Cast Away, A Christmas Carol and Flight.

Zemeckis’ The Polar Express (2004) pioneered the use of motion-capture technology, with Tom Hanks playing multiple roles in an adaptation of Chris Van Allsburg’s beloved 1985 children’s book. A boy who doubts the existence of Santa boards a magical train on a journey to the North Pole, making friends with other children along the way. “It’s an adventure film,” Silvestri told Variety. “It’s the story of a boy in search of his sense of belief. It happens to take place in the Christmas environment, but it could have been in a desert or in outer space. It’s a boy trying to find what he believes in, and his inner strength comes from that.”

Silvestri worked on the film for more than two years, as it featured several original songs (with lyrics by Glen Ballard) woven into the story. For the Polar Express soundtrack CD, he arranged four of these into an instrumental suite that begins with “Believe,” heard instrumentally throughout the score as the film’s main theme (and expanded into a Josh Groban power ballad for the end credits). “The Polar Express,” sung by children aboard the train (and in patterned fashion by Tom Hanks during the credits), gives way to “When Christmas Comes to Town,” touchingly performed by three children in the film. The suite closes with “Spirits of the Season,” sung in the film by elves as they prepare Santa’s sleigh for its Christmas Eve journey.

“There isn’t a chorus in the business better schooled for the caroling season than this one,” wrote Billboard about the Robert Shaw Chorale and its 1963 RCA LP The Many Moods of Christmas, dubbing the album “strong holiday wax.” Shaw (long the dean of American choral conductors) teamed with composer and arranger Robert Russell Bennett (brilliant orchestrator of more than 300 Broadway musicals) to create four “cantatas” based on Christmas songs. Shaw selected the carols and devised the overall framework, while Bennett created the orchestral accompaniment. “It was [Bennett’s] later claim,” Shaw remarked in 1997, “that I had so ‘laid out’ the vocal arrangements that all he had to do was ‘put in the notes.’ But this was simply not true. These arrangements were 90% Robert Russell.” The fourth suite from the LP opens with a chorale that many OSSCS concertgoers will recognize from Bach’s Christmas Oratorio.

To close this concert, we invite you to lift your voices with the Seattle Chamber Singers in a medley of carols (refer to the facing page for lyrics) by John Finnegan, a member of the Harvard class of 1947, who followed in the footsteps of Leroy Anderson as an arranger for the Harvard Band.

Jingle bells, jingle bells,
Jingle all the way!
Oh what fun it is to ride
In a one-horse open sleigh.
Jingle bells, jingle bells . . .
Dashing through the snow
In a one-horse open sleigh,
O’er the fields we go,
Laughing all the way.
Bells on bobtail ring,
Making spirits bright,
What fun it is to ride and sing
A sleighing song tonight. Oh!
Jingle bells, jingle bells . . .

Joy to the world! The Lord is come.
Let Earth receive her king.
Let every heart prepare him room,
And heaven and nature sing,
And heaven, and heaven and nature sing.

It came upon the midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the Earth
To touch their harps of gold:
“Peace on the Earth, goodwill to men,
From heav’n’s all-gracious king.”
The world in solemn stillness lay
To hear the angels sing.

Hark the herald angels sing,
“Glory to the newborn king!
Peace on Earth and mercy mild,
God and sinners reconciled.”
Joyful, all ye nations rise,
Join the triumph of the skies,
“Christ is born in Bethlehem.”
Hark! The herald angels sing,
“Glory to the newborn king!”

Silent night, holy night.
All is calm, all is bright.
Round yon virgin mother and child,
Holy infant so tender and mild.
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Sleep in heavenly peace.

Away in a manger,
No crib for his bed,
The little Lord Jesus
Laid down his sweet head.
The stars in the bright sky
Looked down where he lay,
The little Lord Jesus
Asleep on the hay.
The cattle are lowing, the poor baby wakes,
But little Lord Jesus, no crying he makes.
I love thee, Lord Jesus, look down from the sky
And stay by my side ’til morning is nigh.

Deck the halls with boughs of holly,
Fa la la la la la la la.
’Tis the season to be jolly,
Fa la la la la la la la.
Don we now our gay apparel,
Fa la la la la la la la.
Troll the ancient Yuletide carol,
Fa la la la la la la la.

O come, all ye faithful,
Joyful and triumphant!
O come ye, o come ye to Bethlehem.
Come and behold him,
Born the king of angels:
O come, let us adore him,
O come, let us adore him,
O come, let us adore him,
Christ the Lord.
